

Austin Office Helps Rebuild Local Houses

December, 2009

Reznick Group's Austin office is still relatively new to the central Texas area, having only been opened since 2006. And that newness and excitement are still very high with the professionals who work in that office. Leveraging the firm's core practice in affordable housing real estate, the Austin office has chosen several community service projects that highlight the firm's long standing commitment to ensuring that affordable housing remains available for those who need it.

The professionals from the Austin office have partnered with Habitat for Humanity to help deconstruct local area homes in preparation for them to be rebuilt and provided to a family in need of safe and affordable housing. Reznick Group – Austin put down their pencils and calculators and picked up hammers to help tear down doors, walls, cabinets and electrical to ready the home for its transformation. They also sorted through and salvaged items that could be used at the organization's resale location. Habitat sales the salvaged items to the general public at a discount and uses the sale proceeds to continue revitalizing demolished homes.

Among many community outreach efforts, the Austin office professionals with strong encouragement from their office leadership, pride themselves on giving as much as they can to deserving organizations throughout Austin and central Texas.
