

Los Angeles Office Employees Volunteer at Area Food Bank

December 18, 2009

On Friday, December 18th, the LA Office reported for duty at the Los Angeles Regional Food Bank. There was plenty of enthusiastic talent on-hand to help sort literally thousands of cartons of food that had been donated by local and regional grocery stores throughout Southern California. Volunteers cheerfully pitched in to sort food by carefully examining each can, jar, box and bag for nutritional content and expiration date. Other volunteers helped sort and pack approved food donations into boxes to be given to local families in plenty of time for their holiday celebrations. This was a fantastic opportunity for the Los Angeles office to get out and help our community while enjoying each others' company. The event was so successful, in fact, that Amy Myers, the office Community Events Coordinator, already has plans in the works to get out in the community on multiple fulfilling, and fun-filled occasions next year.
